Throughout his years in practice, he has acquired a wealth of knowledge. His passion is to provide exemplary care and service to his patients, and to share his knowledge with others. As such, he serves as an adjunct instructor at Portland Community College for their Optician Assitant Program.

His programs are detailed and informative, yet fun and entertaining. For many years, he has been a contributing writer for Jobson Publications, and has also written Continuing Education programs for both The National Academy of Opticianry and The Opticians Association of Washington.
